Brian Rayment

I was posted to Singapore in 1956 having started my training at Newbury in 1955. Although I went by troopship, SS Orwell I recall, I returned home in 1957, again by troopship but this time via Durban and Dacca because of the Suez Crisis. One week after my arrival in Singapore the whole unit was transferred to Batu Catonment in KL where the Unit remained for the rest of my Service.

I was allocated the map Ref "G6" to update and started the updating process via aeriel photos straight away. In due course I was detached, along with a Jeep Driver , a 3 Tonner driver, plus 6 Ghurkas for our protection, to a base in Seramban where I duly carried out field checks to clarify various details that could not be identified from the photos. Incidentally is there any reference to these maps on line, I recall they all had the "G" prefix. Having just completed my map prior to returning home, I was always hopeful that I might be able to obtain it in the future.

I will be 90 next week so I suspect there will be very few of my colleagues that I associated with still around, but having found your email address I felt it would be useful to provide this short profile of myself for posterity
